

Poor Folk, one of Dostoyevskys greatest narratives is the story of two lower class people who fall in love. However, because of their extreme poverty they are too poor to even marry. Dostoyevskys Poor Folk is an epistolary novel, or one told through a series of letters between the characters. It is gripping in its portrayal of the suffering, humiliation, and isolation that the poorest members of any society are forced to endure. A triumph of Russian literature, Poor Folk is a shining example of Dostoyevskys narrative genius and its relative brevity makes it one of the authors more accessible works.
